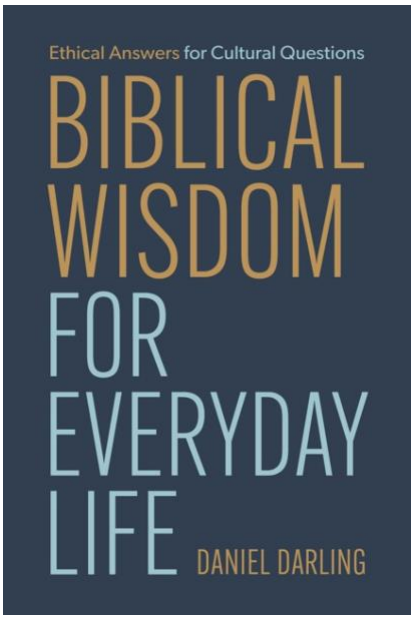
Daniel Darling offers biblical guidance for pressing cultural questions



BRENTWOOD, Tenn., March 19, 2026—In an era marked by rapid cultural change and moral uncertainty, author and Christian ethicist Daniel Darling points believers to Scripture with the release of "Biblical Wisdom for Everyday Life: Ethical Answers for Cultural Questions," May 26, 2026, from B&H Publishing.

Drawing on the Bible and the historic Christian tradition, Darling equips readers to think clearly and live faithfully amid complex ethical challenges in modern life. Rather than offering simplistic answers, "Biblical Wisdom for Everyday Life" helps Christians discern when Scripture speaks directly and when wisdom—applied biblical knowledge shaped by grace—is needed to navigate difficult decisions.

"Christians today are constantly confronted with questions previous generations rarely faced," Darling said. "These issues aren't abstract debates. They're conversations happening in churches, classrooms, families and workplaces every day. My hope is to help believers approach these questions with both conviction and compassion."

The book addresses a range of contemporary topics, including:

- Sexual ethics and cohabitation
- Abortion and the value of human life,
- Marijuana and emerging psychedelic use
- Reproductive technologies such as IVF
- End-of-life care

Written for church leaders, parents and thoughtful lay readers, "Biblical Wisdom for Everyday Life" is designed to serve as both a personal resource and a tool for discipleship. Each chapter offers practical insight for applying biblical principles to real-world situations, helping Christians live out their faith with clarity and humility.

Possible Interview Questions

- How are you experiencing these questions in your life as a professor and parent?
- How can Christian leaders help parents and young believers understand the difference between clear biblical commands and situations that require wisdom?
- What does forming a conscience rooted in Scripture look like in everyday family life, and how is that different than just teaching right answers?
- How can pastors and ministry leaders prepare themselves to respond with both conviction and compassion when controversial issues surface in pastoral care?
- How should parents discern when and how to talk with their children about difficult topics like sexuality, substance use or bioethical questions?
- How can Christian leaders help the next generation see God's design as a pathway to joy rather than a set of restrictions?
- What encouragement would you give parents who feel overwhelmed by how quickly cultural and ethical questions are changing for their kids?
- What is the one takeaway you hope Christian leaders and parents carry with them from "Biblical Wisdom for Everyday Life" as they disciple the next generation?
